"Today's meeting has given a wonderful dimension to the relationships among Kuwaitis," Al-Hajraf affirmed. The Amir reaffirmed his keenness on exchanging views with representatives of the society on all issues of national concern," he said.

On his part, Issa Abdullah Al-Othman, another businessman, said: "The friendly speech of the Amir gave all the audience a great momentum to pursue work for the prosperity and welfare of the homeland." Bader Ahmad Al-Sharhan, also a businessman, said: "This is neither the first nor the last such meeting. Govt blamed for aborted session

Oil price 'fantastic'

By B Izzak

KUWAIT: The National Assembly failed to hold a special session yesterday to debate the government's five-year development plan for lack of quorum and many MPs put the blame squarely on the government, which incidentally was the one that requested the session. Speaker Jasssem Al-Khoafi first adjourned the session for half an hour and when he came back, there were only 32 MPs and no ministers, so he accordingly adjourned the session for another day.

Khoafi later told reporters that when he first adjourned the session, there were three ministers in the chamber but when he came back there were none. Under Kuwaiti law, no Assembly session can be held without the presence of at least one Cabinet minister. After the session was adjourned, the government submitted another request to hold a substitute special session tomorrow. A similar request was also filed by a number of lawmakers. Khoafi then decided to call for the new session tomorrow.

The session was scheduled to debate the government's five-year plan which envisages spending at least KD 35 billion on a number of mega development projects until the fiscal year 2013/2014. Deputy premier for economic affairs, minister of housing and development, Sheikh Ahmad Fahd Al-Sabah issued an apology to the Kuwaiti people for what happened and recalled that it was the government who requested the session. The three Cabinet ministers were at the Assembly but all of them were outside the chamber.

Several MPs seized the opportunity to blast the government for the failure of the session. MP Abdulrahman Al-Anjari said the "government disappointed everyone today because the development plan is one of the most vital issues and today should have been historical" in passing the plan. MP Rola Dabhi strongly criticized the government and said that 12 lawmakers signed a request to hold a new session tomorrow. MP Masooma Al-Mubarak said the failure to hold the session is an indication of the government's incompetence, adding:

Iran nuke scientist killed in bombing

Tehran blames US, Israel • Stain man was Mousavi supporter

TEHRAN: A leading Iranian nuclear scientist was murdered in Tehran yesterday in a rare bomb attack that the government quickly blamed on "mercenaries" in the pay of archfoes the United States and Israel. The daylight killing came amid an increasingly bitter standoff between Iran and world powers over Tehran's controversial nuclear drive, which the West suspects is masking an atomic weapons program.

Masoud Ali Mohammadi, a particle physics professor at prestigious Tehran University, died when a bomb strapped to a motorcycle was triggered by remote control as he was getting into his car outside his home in northern Tehran, state media said and a senior official said. "One can see in preliminary investigations signs of evil by the triangle of the Zionist regime, America and their mercenaries in Iran in this terrorist

Criminal records a must for residency

KUWAIT: The Interior Ministry said yesterday all foreigners seeking to apply for temporary residency must bring criminal records certified by the official authorities of their countries. Director of Hawally Governorate Immigration Col Taha Ibrahim Marafi, in a press statement, affirmed the refusal of granting residency to those who have entry visas, as stipulated by articles 24, 22, 20, 19 and 18, and asked foreign residency applicants must bring their criminal records.

Marafi said this decision will benefit homeland security, adding that the Security Media Department at the Ministry of Interior carried out campaigns through the print and audio-visual media to publicize the new terms for residency in the country. Criminal records must be issued after the date of issuance of the visit visa for expatriates who come to Kuwait from countries other than their own, and certificates from their homeland should be valid for three months. He noted that the decision excludes people under the age of 18 for visitors on visas issued on the basis of article 22, adding that the decision is also applicable on those with government contracts. — KUNA

Brits held in Dubai for extramarital sex

DUBAI: Dubai police said yesterday they had found no evidence to support a British woman's report that she was raped by a waiter in the Gulf Arab emirate, but have arrested her and her boyfriend for having sex outside marriage. The case is the second time in just over a year in which Britons have hit the headlines by falling foul of laws banning extra-marital sex in Dubai, a Muslim emirate popular with sun-seeking Western tourists and expatriates.

The woman, 25, and her British boyfriend, 44, were in Dubai as tourists when they reported to police that she had been raped by a Syrian waiter in the bathroom of a hotel bar. Khamis Al-Muraysh, deputy commander of the Dubai police, said Reuters. "The police didn't find any proof that anything happened in the bathroom," Muraysh said. The investigation found that the British woman had been very drunk and an Indian bartender had helped her find the toilets, where two female staff were present at the time, Muraysh said. She vomited several times and fell asleep on a chair before being escorted back to her boyfriend by one of the two female staff, he said. During questioning the following day, the woman told police that she had been sharing a hotel room with her boyfriend and that they had had sex, which led to the couple being arrested.
